i have this exact thing happening right now he says that hes not talking to anyone at the moment and wants to be with family yet his thing goes up and up i m getting very paranoid about it and upset like fair enough if he doesn t wanna speak to me right at this moment but dont just ignore it when you re score is constantly increasing i dont care if he s talking to mates but fuck

when another user sends you a snap you should open it and reply to it whether you send or receive snaps both generally increase your score so regardless of the content make sure to check and open your snaps daily and have more friends to send and receive snaps to increase your snapchat score further

like most social media platforms today snapchat lets its users connect with friends view live stories and explore news one must download its mobile application from the app store to access this platform at this point a user will come across features like snapchat score unfortunately many users do not understand the snap score concept attempt to increase the number of images you post to your instagram story points are awarded for each snap you take for each picture you send you may add a caption to your table by tapping the send button followed by the my story circle on the recipient s screen the more stories you share the more points you receive that is the best way to increase your snap score because it does not count the viewers so you can post a story with no views and still get a couple of points
